Job Listing Narrative

A new position for a pediatrician has come up so John creates a new posting for the job listings. They won't be publishing until the end of the week, so John will leave the field for 'published' as false until Friday.

After months of searching the hospital has finally been able to fill the position for a pharmacist. John has decided to keep the posting just in case he needs it in the future, so he is able to update and set it to not be published anymore.
